ADMINISTRATIVE EXPERIENCE

Dean of College of Social and Behavioral Science (2014-2022)

- Provide leadership for the largest college at the University of Utah, including 130 tenure line faculty and approximately 100 adjunct and auxiliary faculty.
- Develop programs to promote a high quality undergraduate and graduate experience for approximately 3600 graduate and undergraduate students.
- Provide leadership for the college's budget.
- Direct the development efforts of the college including new initiatives oriented toward graduate and undergraduate fellowships, capital campaign for new 220,000 square foot Gardner Commons Building.

- Lead strategic planning of the college to facilitate developing transformative instructional experiences (internship program, new majors, interdisciplinary graduate training), greater research activity through interdisciplinary cluster hiring, and outreach partnerships with community organizations.
- Led campus wide efforts to build an interdisciplinary institute for the university to expand research opportunities for faculty and students and training opportunities for students.

Chair, Department of Psychology (2008-2011)

- Provided leadership for 30 faculty, 60 graduate students and nearly 1000 undergraduate students.
- Initiated workload policy, which increased total amount of grant dollars submitted six fold and doubled number of grant dollars received.

- Developed successful mentoring program for junior faculty, now a model being used in the college.
- Developed colloquium series in the department to foster greater interdisciplinary research efforts.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

1986-present Undergraduate Courses: Psychology of Infancy and Childhood, Issues in Human Development, Senior Thesis Program, Adult Development and Aging
Graduate Courses: Families and Health: An Interdisciplinary Research Practicum; Health and Relationships Across the Life Span, Cognitive Development, Theories of Human Development, Adult Development and Aging, Adult Cognition and Aging, Multivariate Statistical Analysis, Teaching of Psychology Practicum.

RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research examines how the family system can facilitate or derail the management of chronic illnesses, most especially type 1 and type 2 diabetes. I take a life-span developmental perspective to examine how parents lay a foundation for how individuals utilize their social context for management of chronic illnesses, a social context that expands to friends, co-workers, and romantic partners. Our research examines diabetes management during adolescence, the transition from adolescence to emerging adulthood, and adults across the life span with type 1 diabetes and collaborative processes among healthy adults across the life span as well as couples coping with cancer. Our work has shown that social relationships are key across the life span to chronic illness management and health outcomes. Our research has focused on a single family member (child or adult) who has type 1 or type 2 diabetes and also how families may negotiate multiple chronic illnesses. Our research utilizes a wide variety of methodologies (surveys, daily diaries, daily open-ended interviews, physiological data such as heart rate and blood pressure data as well as blood glucose monitoring) and statistical techniques (multi-level models, dynamic systems perspectives to time dependent data) to capture collaboration across parent-child dyads during adolescence and across adulthood in long-term married couples. We take a team-science approach to science, with large interdisciplinary and multi-site teams that have been funded from NIH.
