To the University of Utah Community,

In light of the revised Executive Order on Immigration of 6 March 2017 and in recognition of the challenges that international student and scholar mobility to the US currently and will continue to face, the University of Utah reaffirms and strongly stands behind its earlier statement of January 31: <https://attheu.utah.edu/facultystaff/support-for-international-community/>

The University of Utah is committed to welcoming and supporting all international students and scholars. The University administration believes that higher education has a responsibility to effectively advocate for the international flow of knowledge and people as well as support all individuals who are part of our campus community. The Office for Global Engagement through its staff members in International Student & Scholar Services is providing continuously updated information for students and faculty impacted by the new Executive Order at this website: <http://internationalcenter.utah.edu/executive-order.php>
